Market Recap

Bond yields fell for the fifth straight month in September with the two-year Treasury note ending the quarter at its lowest point since September 2022. Continued progress on the Fed's inflation mandate has allowed committee members to shift their attention away from prices to the quickly softening labor market.

Job openings for July slipped to a 3½ year low of roughly 7.7 million, down from over 12 million in March 2022. At the high point, the ratio of available jobs to job seekers was roughly 2 to 1; suddenly, it's 1.1 to 1. At this pace, it's not hard to imagine a shortage of jobs in the near future. The August employment report added to the concern with softer-than-expected job gains. Non-farm payrolls rose by +142k, slightly below forecast, while downward revisions to prior periods subtracted 86k. This combined to drag the three-month average down to +116k, less than half of the 2023 average monthly pace. However, the unemployment rate actually decreased from 4.3% to 4.2%, and hourly earnings came in a little warmer than expected, making for a mixed report.

On the inflation side, the overall consumer price index (CPI) rose +0.2% for the second straight month, matching the median forecast as lower energy prices pulled the headline down. Overall food prices were up by just +0.1%, with the price of groceries unchanged. When food and energy are excluded, core CPI was up +0.3%, above both the +0.2% median forecast and the +0.2% July gain. Shelter costs were the unfortunate outlier in August with a +0.5% increase, contributing roughly 70% of the core rise. On an annual basis, overall CPI held steady at +2.5%, the lowest since February 2021 while core CPI was unchanged at +3.2%. The so-called "super-core rate," which strips out food, energy, and housing, took an unexpected step forward, increasing by +0.33% in August after a +0.21% rise in July. Like the employment report, CPI was mixed. The inflation rate is well below its peak, but it's still above the Fed's target and it remains unclear that the recent downtrend will continue unabated.

As the September 18th FOMC meeting approached, Fed officials had yet to make their policy intentions clear. There was no doubt that the committee would announce its first policy move in 14 months and the first rate cut since March 2020, but whether it would be 25 or 50 basis points was essentially a coin flip. Arguments against the larger cut included appearing to favor the incumbent party just seven weeks before the election and conveying the idea that deteriorating economic conditions required a stronger response. In what felt like a surprise (only because Fed officials had not telegraphed it sooner) the committee announced a 50 bp reduction with a new overnight target range of 4.75% to 5.00%. In the press conference that followed, Chairman Powell managed to soothe concerns over a weakening economy while citing progress on inflation.

The first "dot plot" since June showed a 2024 yearend overnight target of 4.25% to 4.50%, implying quarter point cuts at each of the two remaining meetings this year. Committee member forecasts indicate reductions of another 100 bps in both 2025 and 2026 with a neutral rate of 2.875%.

The yield curve is indicating a more aggressive path with 75 basis points priced-in over the remainder of 2024 and another 125 basis points next year. Whether the Fed's dot plot, the futures market or some other rate path prevails will be determined entirely by upcoming data. If the economy proves resilient, job growth should pick up, giving the Fed pause, but if the economy weakens significantly, rate cuts could be fronted-loaded, driving yields still lower in the coming months. Adding to an already muddled economic picture is the upcoming presidential election, which promises anything but clarity.

Investing in fixed income securities involves interest rate risk, credit risk, and inflation risk. Interest rate risk is the possibility that bond prices will decrease because of an interest rate increase. When interest rates rise, bond prices and the values of fixed income securities fall. When interest rates fall, bond prices and the values of fixed income securities rise. Credit risk is the risk that a company will not be able to pay its debts, including the interest on its bonds. Inflation risk is the possibility that the interest paid on an investment in bonds will be lower than the inflation rate, decreasing purchasing power.

Cash alternatives typically include money market securities and U.S. treasury bills. Investing in such cash alternatives involves inflation risk. In addition, investments in money market securities may involve credit risk and a risk of principal loss. Because money market securities are neither insured nor guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency, there is no guarantee the value of your investment will be maintained at $1.00 per share, and your shares, when sold, may be worth more or less than what you originally paid for them. U.S. Treasury bills are subject to market risk if sold prior to maturity. Market risk is the possibility that the value, when sold, might be less than the purchase price.

Investing in stock securities involves volatility risk, market risk, business risk, and industry risk. The prices of most stocks fluctuate. Volatility risk is the chance that the value of a stock will fall. Market risk is the chance that the prices of all stocks will fall due to conditions in the economic environment. Business risk is the chance that a specific company's stock will fall because of issues affecting it. Industry risk is the chance that a set of factors particular to an industry group will adversely affect stock prices within the industry.
